It has awesome spark, carb has been cleaned like 6 times. Engine will barely even sputter if I spray carb cleaner or gas in the cylinder. I want to check the Timing of the points but do not have manual. So I don't know the BTDC setting. Not sure if it applies, hopefully it does. Steve My sled has contact points for ignition, I have a dial indicator tool, but no tachometer. There is a mark on the case also. You will need a buzzer or a light to know when the points open when the flywheel lines up with the F mark on the flywheel and the case. Hope that's what you're looking for. Old School. Is setting the BTDC with a dial indicator and a ohm meter across the points a reliable setting procedure. The motor will only spudder, so I cannot get to 6000 rpm for a timing light. Thanks Chris. What I found was that I had great spark, compression, good gas and a good carb. I finally took the carb off and covered the intake with my thumb and cranked it over with a plug in it and had no suction. I removed the engine and tore it down and found bad crank seals. It was sucking in through the case instead of the intake. Just waiting on seals to arrive probably tomorrow and my kitty will be purring again. Hope this helps I will check the suction out. Where did you find seals at. Behind the recoil. The crank seal wasn't even in place, fell out I have new ones ordered. <http://sksound.com/userfiles/cadillac-dts-owners-manual.xml>
