casio ca901 manual

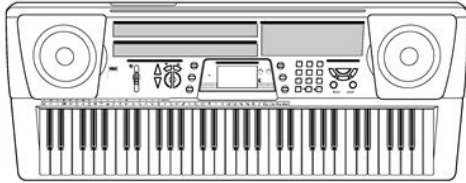

I havent shown any of my calculator watches on this site so far, so here is a recent acquisition. This weeks watch is the Casio CA901 Calculator Game Watch. Wow what a faceful, huh. The watch has a pretty busy display and dial, with 4 buttons on each side and a 12 key keypad on the front. Why so many keys Well youll find out later in this entry. Lets examine its construction first. The watch casing and side buttons are chrome plated base metal. The case back and band are stainless steel. The front features a glass crystal and a metallic keypad with a rubber membrane underneath invisible. The glass is held in with a tight fitting gasket and the keypad is held in with 4 screws from inside the case; there is no glue anywhere on this watch. The module inside is held together with screws, typical of very old Casio modules. Because the bezel is chrome plated, it is very difficult to find this watch in such good condition. I only managed to obtain one by buying a mint looking CA901 with a broken module and a scratched up CA851 with a working module. Then I simply inserted the 134 module from the CA851 into this CA901 and now I have a mint condition CA901. Ok lets walk through its many many features. First you start with regular timekeeping. I suppose the Casio engineers thought that this miracle would cease before 1999. Thats a joke and if you dont get it you need to look at some old Casio advertisements. Stopwatch with lap time, Alarm and hourly signal, Hold on a minute, this is not your ordinary alarm. Most people dont know this, but this watch has an adjustable tone alarm. Eventually your alarm will sound like a man trying to sing in falsetto, then a mouse, then a mouse singing in falsetto. It has 10 different tones in total. Dual time, And game. Now, the game controls are not intuitive. The keypad keys loose their individuality in game mode. When you need to shoot down a 5, you have to press any key on the left side 5 times then press any key on the right side once. <http://www.terracell.pt/images/el-usb-tc-lcd-data-logger-manual.xml>

If you want to shoot down a 7, you press any key on the left side 7 times, and then press any key on the right side once. Now, if you want to shot down a 7 after shooting down a 5, you press any key on the left side 2 times and then press any key on the right side once. Do you get it now No Eh.;D Moving on then! One of the left side buttons the 3rd one from the top is dedicated to the calculator function. Pressing it will put you into the calculator mode from any of the watch modes, including the game mode. Pressing the button again exits the calculator and spits you out into regular time mode. The calculator is a basic 8 digit calc. You may think thats nothing special, but you have to remember this is the early 80s. How can you fit a calculator into that thing, AND put a game into that same package WOW! Of course, there were some compromises. For example, the watch will store your best game score so far. But if you use the stopwatch, the best score will be erased. I guess there was some sort of memory limitation using 1982 technology. Oh by the way, this watch has several twins. There is the CA851, CA85 and CA90, which all use the 134 module. And each of those have some color variations. There is also the CA86, which is ultra rare. Going to buy some new batts see if it works. I did try this once before and no signs of life as I recal. What is the right voltage thaat makes a minute a minute I got two new pairs of the battery SR1130W, 1.55V, 389 but its not working. If I hold the batteries in their slot its ok, I can see the display well, but if I put on the back I cant see, only in an angel. If anyone got an idea what is the problem, and what can I do please help me! Thanks! Good luck!, I wish I kept mine. Still got the original case it came in along with the Instruction booklet. Some pics of it on my flickr account Recently I got two new batteries, and the watch works well. I have read from you that date can be changed by setting the year as 1981. http://www.pphu-joanna.pl/fckpliki/el_ge-aze-cc4q-manual.xml

However, my problem is I do not know how to set the date. Which buttons do I have to press Thank you. I did manage to go right round twice once but it was hard. The max score was 1,000,000. I wanted to see what happened when I reached it. It cycled back to zero. It took me the better part of 89 hours of continuous play to find that out. Got cramps in my thumbs as I had to alternate between the left and right. Haha! I remember my best friends 6year old daughter who was enamored withe watches buttons calculator watches were a novelty back then. I also remember playing the game one night wanting to know what happens when you reach 1,000,000 points. After 89 hour of continuous play I found out that it recycled back to zero. The prices I paid to find this out were two sore thumbs and an upset wife who was waiting her turn to play the game she eventually ended up going to sleep. What are those numbers millions pieces. Just wondering. One fried of me has gone mad in 92 to find a similar watch with alarm AND calculator AND stopper AND dual time, but he failed. Of course he didnt even try to find one with game I have used the watch around 2000 for a couple of years, it was the loudest in the room on the university By the way, the watch does handle the Y2K correctly tried to set 991231 for the date, 2359 for the hour, in one minute it switched to 01.01.2000, unfortunately there is no possibility to set such dates directly. Now I had to set 19apr1996 to have the correct day of the week I put new batteries in it and it works great. Do you think its worth much to a collector Thanks. If you know the trick please advise. Thanks in advance Afonso I will now get it back in working order and sell off so if anyone is interested I will get some new batterys sometime this week and have just got a new strap and the face is virtually brand new. Many thanks. Having cleaned acid away, it did work but only thelight button.

I then took apart entire module and cleaned every circuit trace, every inch and every part with alcohol and now working as good as new. LCD is crisp and light is extremely bright. What impresses me about it is that not a single drop of glue used anywhere in or around this watch. It is indeed a beautiful example of vintage Casio. The seller Necmi Omay is honest and a great seller. I'm sure he knew he could have sold this item double its price but was more than fair and communicated every step of the way. The package took a little longer than expected but by no way was this his fault. I would definitely purchase again from Necmi 7540file. Will definitely recommend to others. The service center here doesnt seem to service this watch. This link will give you the info you need Best regards. JewelTake my advise, with a casio watch, look for a small watch repair shop in your area for the battery change. One bezel pin broke off Next battery change was via a shop and the illuminator worked again as did the alarm. This was just a battery cahnge, rather than a repair job One of those things, I guess It is different than the 691 or the 901 that test the alarms with the bottom right button. Thank you When I began to take the battery out the movement came out and the clip came off and it seperated into 2 pieces. I think I got it back togeather correctly, it seems to only snap togeather one way. I followed the instructions I found on line and tried to reset the watch after I replaced the battery but it doesnt work. When I press the light button the display will come on sometimes for a few seconds then go off. The new battery tested good. Answer questions, earn points and help others.
